When you buy mining stock there are two elements which determine the purchase. FIRST—Who are the men behind the deal? SECOND—Where is the property located. One of the biggest elements in the success of every business enterprise is the element of the men behind the business. If these men are careful, energetic, competent, conservative, reliable and men of good judgment, you have confidence in the future success of that business. If the men backing a new mining company are successful in their business enterprises you have more confidence in feeling that they will be successful in your business. You will have confidence and feel that you will get a run and a good run for your money when you place it in a business under their management. The directors of the Van Dyke Copper Company are all well known Arizona men. They have toiled and wrought in the pioneering ventures of Arizona for years with success. The town of Miami seven years ago was nothing but a desert waste. Mr. Van Dyke purchased the ground, laid out the town and began selling lots. He told in the columns of the newspapers his belief that the town would make good. He told why he believed it would make good. He has been fighting Miami's battles every day since and the great big modern city is the result. Success has been achieved and every person who invested on his judgment has been richly rewarded. The same year Hoval A. Smith came to this district and found the Live Oak mine a mere prospect. He and his associates purchased it and went to work. Mr. Smith became the president. He took personal charge of the work. The prospect in two years became a mine with a developed tonnage of 26,000,000 tons of copper ore. Every stockholder made a liberal profit. These two men have joined to make the Van Dyke Copper Company a success. The other directors are men of ability and standing in Arizona and have the confidence and respect of the investing public. The other great factor is the location of the property. No man can say in advance that a mining enterprise is sure to win. The success of a mining enterprise is problematical but some enterprises are better than others. The location if chosen by careful, competent, conservative men is more apt to prove a success than one more carelessly chosen. The Van Dyke Copper Company is located in the great Miami Copper Belt. It is joined by the Miami Copper Company and Inspiration Consolidated Copper Company properties. It has the distinction of being close in to the developed ore body. The end line of the Van Dyke Copper Company is only 200 yards away from the proven ore body. The developed ore body of the district is about two and a half miles long and about a half mile wide in its widest part. Many people believe that this great ore body does not end abruptly in the Miami Copper Company's property but continues on down into the Van Dyke Copper Company's property only two hundred yards further down the hill. Not many years ago all of the old timers will tell you that it was said that the ore body ended in the Inspiration property. But the Miami Copper Company was formed and they started exploration work which developed their present magnificent tonnage. The stockholders who invested at the original flotation and who have held their stock have received magnificent returns upon their investments. The Van Dyke Copper Company stock is being offered to the public in Miami today for fifty cents a share. Certificates of fifty shares or more will be written. The Van Dyke Copper Company is backed by a strong practical board of directors of experienced Arizona men. This insures a careful legitimate administration. The property is favorably located. It is near the proven ore body of the district. It is near the smelters of the district. It joins the town of Miami where homes, schools and markets are already developed. It has an operating railroad over the property. It has excellent concentrator, smelter, warehouse, store yard and power house sites as well as ample room for the storage of tailings. The Van Dyke Copper Company certainly has a happy combination of a strong directorate and favorable location of property.
